The classification antibacterial includes anything that destroys bacteria or inhibits the ability of bacteria to grow and reproduce. Herbs approach bacterial infection from two directions. They stimulate the immune system to produce more immune cells aiding your body ' s ability to fight the infection and they act in direct opposition to bacteria by inhibiting their ability to grow and reproduce so they cannot survive. The first line of defense against bacterial infection is prevention. Disinfecting surfaces with known antibacterial cleaners, maintaining good health through diet, rest, and exercise, and minimizing exposure to infectious agents is far more effective than any treatment plan in the continued battle against bacteria. Regardless of the preventative care you take, there are always times where treating an infection will be necessary. Traditionally, bacterial infection is fought by blending herbs that support the body ' s own natural defenses with those that act to inhibit and kill the bacteria. Using a combination that blends both actions helps to minimize the duration and severity of any infection. Many herbs and oils act as natural immunostimulant and antibacterial agents. Some of these natural products work as well as or even better than the products sold in your local pharmacy. Some of the items in your local pharmacy are even created based on the chemical constituents of plants you might have growing in your own yard. This guide contains antibacterial agents that act as both disinfectants for infected air and surfaces and disease fighting agents for the body. Both categories eliminate harmful bacteria. It is important that you read the traditional uses and side effects of each plant and discuss any alternative treatment with a qualified herbalist or physician prior to choosing a natural product.

Weeks have passed since the initial events of the conflict that joined Thomas McCarthy with his roommates and fellow Peace Keepers, Lisbeth Moore and Katarina Contigas, together in destiny. That time marked the beginning of a mysterious series of events the trio is now destined to repeat for lifetimes on end. Newly promoted to the rank of detective in the Chicago Police Department, Tom has landed in the middle of an ongoing FBI kidnapping investigation. Sixteen-year-old Natasha Patel has disappeared, and all eyes are now on chief suspect Nikolous Tiernay. Aware that he alone has access to the information that would rescue the young woman he has yet to meet, Tom must juggle the investigation, mastering changes in his talent with plants, and a budding relationship with Natasha's aunt, Anne Morretti. Furthermore, he must protect his secret at all costs. He must not betray his identity as a Peace Keeper to the FBI. Torn in many directions by multiple allegiances, Tom ultimately realizes he will have to do far more than simply be a part of the investigation if he hopes to locate either Natasha or Nikolous in time-and end the second stage of the conflict of lifetimes that Lisbeth has set back into motion.

Things seem to be happening very quickly. Some things were secrets. And I knew these secrets would never be appropriate, for any conversation, in any lifetime. However, it was my reality. Was anything good going to come out of this? There was too much to tell, and no one would understand. I didn't even understand-so how could anyone else? It seemed improbable that I would get what was inside, out of me. It wasn't how I was raised to discuss this negativity ... to "air out one's dirty laundry," it just wasn't accepted. Was it all my fault? These vulgar and unprecedented events that were beginning to destroy me. I decided to block it out, keep it inside and keep moving with my life. Trying, waiting for the day I would get past it and walk through the door of the other side. The other side of all this madness. In the meantime, I had to do something with my emotions, my secrets and my feelings. They were locked up, tighter than tight. I began to write in journals. Entries that were poems and anecdotal stories of what was happening in my life. I had to become my own inspiration. I had to somehow get what was inside...out. A young girl's life filled with devastation, tragedy and self-destruction was all on its way. It was already here! Still maintaining a happy, ambitious life but harboring guilt, anger and resentment. And dealing with the world and its own evolving. This is the story of over ten years of writings, from the ages of 14-26 years. Someone leading themselves out of the dark and into the light. This was my way and this is my story. My story ... in poetry.
