Triangles. For the purpose of the trig cheat sheet, and conventionally, if the sides of a triangle are labeled a , b , c then the angles are ABC , where A is the angle made by b and c , B is the angle made by a and c , and C is the angle made by a and b . A is called the opposite angle of a , and a is the opposite side of A .

The trig functions can be defined using the measures of the sides of a right triangle. But they also have very useful definitions using the coordinates of points on a graph. First, let let the vertex of an angle be at the origin – the point $(0,0)$ – and let the initial side of that angle lie along the positive x -axis and the terminal side be a rotation in a counterclockwise motion.
